THE ROMAN EMPIRE

Where did the Romans invade?

They ~~ma~~ Rome was founded in 753 BCE and the Roman Empire was founded in 27 BCE. It all started in Rome, Italy. The Roman Empire Army (paragraph 5) spread across Europe and North Africa, but years later, in 476 CE, the Roman Empire ended. Before in 410 CE, the Roman soldiers were sent back to the continent to defend it from invasion. In 313 CE, Roman Britain is converted into Christianity. In 79 CE, Pompeii is destroyed. In 61 CE, Boudica leads a rebellion against the Romans. In 43 CE, Emperor Claudius invades Britain. In 27 BCE, the Roman Empire is founded and in 753, Rome is founded. It fell when barbarians fought back the Romans in 476 CE.

What was life like during the Roman Empire?

Rich Romans ate lying down on sofas and they ate on a low table so they could reach and they ate bread, honey, wine, fruit and meat. In Roman times, a slave would serve (no pun intended) as a waiter. They lived in a villa with a hypocaust and the villas were massive. Yet slaves lived in a wooden hut with 1 room like Hagrid in Harry Potter.

What is the legacy of the Roman Empire?

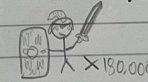

Legacy means things that are left behind and there is over 100 legacies of it like straight roads, a couple of letters, sewers, ink, feet and miles, toilets, good food, radiators, police, money and much, much more. Heating, money, toilets, ~~good~~ roads and police were very useful today. Many Harry Potter spells are Latin (the Roman language) including water is aqua.

Who was the Ivory Bangle Lady?

She was a Roman lady that was born in North Africa to work who moved to York. We know about her because archaeologists dug up her skeleton. She had necklaces, earrings and ivory bangles. Ivory is made from elephant tusks. She is important because we now know black people (she was black) lived in Roman Britain. Hadrian's Wall is a wall on the border of Scotland and England to protect the Romans from pirates and rebels. Newcastle is a city on Hadrian's wall.

FUN FACT!

There are 180,000 men in the Roman Army!

Why were the Roman Army so successful?

The weapons of the Roman Army are: pilum spears, helmets, body armor, the gladius sword, shields, bows and arrows, daggers and the shield (scutum). They had spectacular tactics like the tortoise, wedge and repel cavalry formation. The hierarchy of the Army is a centurion; the leader. There are 100 centurions in the century. And if you think 100 is alot, there are 6,000 men in the Legion.

FUN FACT!

Mosaics are pictures of slaves, Emperors etc. Gladiators and more. They were made by eggshells!!!

One of the keys to the Viking success were their longboats. It could skim on water and travel on land for a long distance, because it holds up to 25 Vikings. And they should use weapons such as a axe, longbow, spear, shield and a sword. The Vikings should usually eat raw goods before they go to battle to make them more vicious.
