Year 4

This strange story happened last Christmas on the twenty sixth of December twenty twenty three. I was on a holiday in Greece for Christmas with my best friend. We were having a stroll along a beach and my friend Trinity said shouted "hey Ellie (which is me) do you want to go for a dive in the sea it's not that cold today I mean how well we are in Greece so it's hot but are you coming?" Yeah sure one minute I answered. I was on my way to change in the bath room when I spotted this thing I called Trinity over and he saw a button on the back of it so obviously Trinity had to push it because I wouldn't do that.

Suddenly, the thing started to grumble. It shook the whole ~~star~~ ground and made all the sand fly up it started to nearly create a sand storm. All I could feel was the breeze blowing my face and swishing around my blue cardigan. ~~and~~ All I could hear was the beautiful turquoise waves rolling and pushing against the sand oh yeah and Trinity screaming "Help sand in my eye, sand in my eye ~~Help Help~~ #ellllp!!!" I helped Trinity and we tried to walk away but the ~~br~~ wind was too strong. we were finally able to get away and we went to the wooden cafe. I got a nice cocktail and some strawberry shortbread. Ice cream. once the thing stopped I went back outside only to see the thing hopping to me it was

Jobs

During the Victorian era, poor children usually had to work from the age of 4 or 5 doing jobs like chimney sweeping, factory working, working in coal mines, farm workers, domestic workers and mill workers.

These were all really dangerous jobs, with a high risk of injury. Because of their small size, the children that worked in places would crawl into tight spaces.

clothing/fashion

Poor children wore second hand clothing from adults cut down to fit them or donated clothes from the wealthy, that was no longer in fashion. Some children even went barefoot in the winter!

Homes

If you were an orphan, a really poor person, a widow or a criminal you would be sent to a workhouse. A workhouse is a communal area of which was very grand on the outside, but the complete opposite. There was the bedroom, filled with rows of beds, they had a kitchen, serving gruel, or ~~tea~~ a version of porridge but with more water and ~~on~~ or milk. They did this so they could make it for more people for cheaper.

Toys and hobbies

* Near the end of the Victorian Era, girls had access and they were used to teach them house skills and they were encouraged to make clothes for their dolls to practice sewing.

They would often make their dolls out of wooden pegs, then drawing faces on them.

Year 5

Rose lived in Dachau, Germany. She loved to see the crooked, ancient, crumbling roof tops in the village. Rose would walk around the pond and watch the silky, golden, chattering ducks fighting for her food in the glistening water. Rose, who was always playing with her friends, doing her ~~home~~ homework, ~~skipped down the~~ joyfully down the street to the village. Rose had lived in the all her life. The ~~1st~~ school girl, ~~skipped down~~ who is 8, was as helpful as ever. Men were cheering. ~~The band was playing~~ The soldiers were marching. The drums were booming. Was this meant to be a party? Where are they going? What are they doing? They were going to war...

We have another speech by the head of the police department. "We have ~~bright~~ ~~tried~~ and tried and tried to finally arrest the vandal. It is ~~was~~ amazing that they managed to do that. I ~~applied~~ applaud them!"

The witch arranged Hansel to eat him!

* Moving forward, the police have congress that the city needs to be a bit more safe. on that note they had are:
• ~~congress~~ putting up more cameras
• lockdown

Dear Mr Finkleberry,

~~Imagine you~~ I would like you to imagine a similar situation. Imagine you get up your seat in your cramped office and walk towards the restroom. You realise the toilets are blocked so you go down to the bottom floor. Now, imagine you had to walk 5 miles there and back. <sup>probably not so quiet.</sup> Luckily, none of your workers have to experience that. Except one. ~~is~~ Mr Cicada, one of your hardest workers, has to make that journey three times a day, ~~the~~ which makes him walk ~~a~~ thirty miles a day. ~~It is not just a waste~~ because of his and your time, ~~it is a waste of~~ in that money. Here are the reasons you need to time treat Cicada like a human. he is gone, he To begin with, by underpaying Cicada, without a can do promotion, for seventeen years, forces him to live in half of the walls of his cramped office. Also, by not giving the work he already does.

him a reasonable paycheck gives him the reasonable opportunity to sue you. In addition, by allowing your guilty workers to assault and harm him, both physically and emotionally, gives him yet another reason to take you to court. Every day, Cicada - on average - works 10 hours a day and unfortinably, has a payment of two pounds ~~on~~ an hour. Recent research had said that he works five hours more than any of his co-workers and they get paid ~~double more than~~ five times more than Cicada.

Secondly, Cicada has to walk a few miles every day to get to a public restroom. This is an outrageous way of discrimination. By walking five miles there and back just because ~~his~~ he is a bug is unacceptable and racist. As well as ~~obliterating~~ his wellbeing, you have made your company 'Matang' less used.

As you can see, your selfish treatment to Cicada has led him to being homeless. To force him to walk miles to just to go to the toilet to relieve himself. To pay him only 2 pounds per hour. To get beaten up every day. You must change this immediately. I am sure an intelligent business man would do the right thing.

Yours Sincerely,

Philip Stoykov.
