

Literacy- using story language

We have been reading 'We're Going on a Bear Hunt' by Michael Rosen.
Can you go on a hunt of your very own in Telegraph Hill Park?

What can you see when you go over, under and through things?

If you are feeling really brave perhaps you will discover a cave!

While you are on your hunt, try to use the language from the book.

Swishy swashy!
Swishy swashy!
Swishy swashy!

As you hunt, think about those special sound words like swishy swashy. These are words that create a sound effect for the thing they are describing. This is called onomatopoeia.

Wow! What a grown-up word!

Maths- positions and positional language

Hold your hands up palms away.

Left

Right

Now that you have been on a hunt, can you make a map of it? Think about these questions:

- Did you need to turn left or right?
- What did you go over, under or through?
- Did you spot something that is in between the two parks?

Draw your map. Can you get one of your parents to follow your map?

Remember to include important landmarks in your map like buildings or ponds etc.

Topic Learning- London Landmarks

From the top of the hill you can get a very good view of London. Which London landmarks can you see?

Do you know what the names of buildings are? Or what they are used for?

Choose a London landmark and recreate it using paint, construction, junk modelling... anything you like!

Can you find any of these London landmarks from the top of Telegraph Hill?

We Love Adventures! Knowledge Organiser

I know left and right

Hold your hands up palms away.

Left

Right

Vocabulary:

- adventure- an exciting or unusual experience
- compass- a tool we can use to show directions
- dangerous- something that might harm us
- island- land that is surrounded by water
- map- a picture that shows us important landmarks in an area
- treasure- objects that are special to us

The Queen's home in London is Buckingham Palace.

Tower Bridge can open so that tall ships can travel underneath it.

What does an adventure look like?

- I can draw my own maps with important landmarks
- I know that I live in England which is in the United Kingdom
- I know that the capital of England is London
- I know I need to wear sun screen and the right clothes to protect my body from the sun.
- I know I need to drink water to stay hydrated.

