

Year 5 Home Learning

Due in Thursday 13th May 2021

Spelling

In our spelling lessons next week, we are learning to spell words that contain the 'oi' sound. This can be spelled 'oi' or 'oy'. Please learn how to spell the words below and write them in sentences to show that you know their meanings. Challenge yourself to learn how to spell as many additional words that are linked to these as you can.

noise      choice      voice      spoil      toilet annoying      disloyal      buoyant      employ      joystick

Maths

The teachers have been checking the DoodleMaths site and have seen that hardly anyone in year 5 is logging on and no-one is logging on every day! This has to change! Mr Jackson still has his trophy and would love to award it to the most deserving class next week. Who will be victorious? Click the link below to take you straight to the right place!

English

Next week, we will continue to read the book 'Escape from Pompeii' and will write newspaper reports based on the eruption of Mount Vesuvius. To help you to get ready for this, please complete the English task in Assignments on Teams. Listen carefully to the information about this in the Loom video!

Science

At school, you have either learned about the major organs in the human body, or you will be learning about this next week. Your task is to use the 'knowledge organisers' in school to learn the names and functions of each organ and then make a poster to show what you know. For an extra challenge, you could include what you know about the skeleton too. When you have finished, you can bring your poster in to school and we will display them in the classrooms. note of any questions you have and we will answer them at school next week.
